SOLDIERS LETTERS.

at this game as I do, and will complain of all the little hardships he has to bear, such as carrying a 70 pound pack and a nine pound rifle, marching thru rain and mud to his knees with blisters on both feet. He may do like I did one day. We fell out on the roadside for a few minutes rest, and when we fell in I got up and left my rifle, forgetting that I ever owned one. Some funny things happen to a buck private.

Received a letter from you since starting this, also 3 from my girl at Riddleton and one other. Of course you know I am feeling good just now. Haven't had but 2 letters from Benton since I came over, but guess he doesn't have time to write.

Some day when I feel like writing will get out a long one, probably as long as the one to Banks Robertson (3 pages) don't know what he will think as it is the first one in nine months.

Trust you are both well and that I will be hearing from you again soon.

With love your son,
Sgt. J. M. Draper.

MRS. BYRD LEE TERRY DIES AT COVINGTON.

Mrs. Byrd Terry, wife of Byrd Lee Terry, died at her father's home in Covington, Tenn., Oct., 14th, 1918 of pneumonia following influenza. Mrs. Terry before her marriage was a Montgomery, and of a prominent family of that city. Mr. Terry, brother of Mrs. G. Lee McGlasson, was formerly a Jackson county boy, born and reared near Whitleyville, but for a number of years been traveling salesman for a firm in Louisiana. He enlisted in the army this spring and is stationed at Camp Jackson, S. C., with the medical corps. His many friends and relatives in this county will be deeply grieved to learn of his wife's death. Mr. and Mrs. Terry made a brief visit to relatives here in the early summer. They had been married five years and have no children.
